

Want to Donate Directly to Tornado-Affected Communities?

Individuals and businesses wanting to donate directly to local communities in support of disaster recovery efforts, after the March 2 storms, have several options.

Clark County

Contributions may be made to the Clark County Red Cross online at www.clarkredcross.org. Making a gift to the Red Cross is the most effective way to contribute immediate assistance to those in need. The Red Cross will ensure that funds are directed to victims to provide immediate food, clothing, shelter, etc.

Donations of specific items, such as household cleaning supplies and construction materials, may be made to donation drop-off sites. For information regarding locations, as well as volunteer opportunities, go to: www.iauww.org.

The Community Foundation's Disaster Relief Fund exists to provide long-term relief to those affected by natural disasters. In addition to providing for immediate needs, a contribution to the Disaster Relief Fund will help rebuild homes, schools, and the lives of those affected by the March 2 tornadoes long after the dust has settled. To donate online, go to: www.cfsouthernindiana.com. You can also mail a check to:

Community Foundation of Southern Indiana
4104 Charlestown Road
New Albany, IN 47150

Indicate in the memo line that your contribution is for the "Disaster Relief Fund."

The Scott County Community Foundation has established the Scott County Immediate Response Fund. One hundred percent of donations to this fund will support disaster recovery efforts, and will focus on long-term needs as the community recovers.

In addition, funding will be provided from the Scott County Immediate Response Fund, an endowment fund that was established several years ago to meet the immediate needs of local agencies. Donations to this fund will provide support for future needs that may arise from not only natural disasters, but as an aid to local nonprofits to become more effective and efficient in accomplishing their own programs.

Past grant recipients include American Red Cross to purchase disaster relief supplies; Children's Health Clinic to give preventive and medical services to children; United Way of Scott County for the 2-1-1 referral help line, housing for homeless people and ramps for the disabled and elderly; the Preservation Alliance, Inc. for roof repair at the Scott County Heritage Center and Museum, and other programs.
